Opinion

Many people think that living in the countryside is ideal. They imagine only the good things, the clean air, and living close to nature. However, from my point of view, the struggle with practical day-to-day life makes it far less than attractive.

R

Reason 1 Firstly, there is little choice when it comes to shopping. Firstly, there is little choice when it comes to shopping.

E

Explain 1

There are not many shops in my area, just one supermarket. It is two kilometers from my house, so even if I only need some milk, I have to get in the car. Furthermore, the variety of goods is limited and never seems to change much. Without a trip to the city, my diet becomes pretty dull.

Reason 2 Another reason is that the Internet service is very poor.

Explain 2

Usually, it is so slow that I can't watch a video. Even worse, it sometimes goes down completely in the evening. This is annoying when you are watching a movie or playing an online game. Moreover, if you are trying to upload a video to Youtube, it can be incredibly frustrating.

Reason 3 (strongest reason last) Finally, and most importantly, for me, there are no opportunities to find good work.

Explain 3

In my area, there is a small tire factory, a supermarket, and a gas stand. They offer only poorly-paid boring jobs. Most larger companies have their offices in the city, so if I want to find more exciting and better-paying work, I will have to commute for two hours on unreliable trains.

Opinion

Briefly, country life is full of daily challenges and harder than people may suppose. In my opinion, it is extremely inconvenient, and anyone considering it should think very carefully. I am going to move to the city as soon as I can find a job there.
